

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Chiropractic Author and Editor Recognized Nationally

Roanoke, Virginia - August 25th, 2016 - The American Society of Business Publishers and Editors (ASBPE) has honored Dr. K. Jeffrey Miller with the 2016 Azbee National Silver Medal in the category of Best Regular Column as well as the Pacific Region Gold Medal in the same category. The articles, written by Dr. Miller and edited by Executive Editor Peter Crownfield, were originally published in Dr. Miller's monthly column in Dynamic Chiropractic Magazine.

The ASBPE is the national organization representing publishers and editors of print and online business publications. Each year, the ASBPE recognizes outstanding work by its members through the Azbee Awards. The awards include several categories related to columns, print publications, online publications, blogs, designs, and websites. Azbee Awards are given regionally and nationally. Judges include more than 90 experienced ASBPE editors and designers. Dr. Miller's articles were among over 1,100 submissions for the 2016 awards. Examples of ASBPE member publications include:

- The Progressive Farmer
- M & C; Meetings and Conventions
- Computerworld
- ABA Journal; The Lawyers' Magazine
- Remodeling
- Garden Center
- Health Facilities management
- Food Service; equipment and supplies
- Investment News
- Design World
- Solar World
- AgriBusiness Global
- The American Lawyer
- Addiction Professional
- HR Magazine
- Dynamic Chiropractic
- Golfdom
- McKnight's Long Term Care News
- Accounting Today

When the top contenders for the 2016 awards were announced, Miller and Crownfield were named regional and national finalists in the Best Regular Column category. In late July 2016, they were awarded first place and received the Gold Medal for the Pacific Region of the country before being awarded the Silver Medal in the National competition during the ASBPE's annual convention.

"I was not familiar with the ASBPE and did not know the articles had been submitted until Peter informed me we were regional and national finalists. The nomination, the finalist status, and awards humbled me. Peter is a very talented editor and we have worked well together for years. We make a good team," said Miller.

Crownfield added to Miller's comments by saying, "Articles selected for the best regular column must be relevant, engaging, and well-written. Two column articles published within a calendar year must be submitted, so an author whose material qualifies must consistently produce high-caliber articles that will make the judges/readers think, inform them on a relevant topic, and most of all, engage them with smart, sound writing."

"Being a finalist and now a medal recipient both regionally and nationally is an achievement for the entire chiropractic profession. The awards are not localized to chiropractic publications. It proves the quality of publishing in chiropractic is on par with the standards established by the ASBPE for occupational business publications nationwide," said Miller.

Links to the two competition articles written by Miller and edited by Crownfield appear below.

Applying the Thin Skull Principle

Practice Policy \(Gone Bad\): The Sign

Contact:
Benjamin Miller
benjaminjmillier@gmail.com
1005 South Elm Street,
Greenville, IL 62246
Ph. 540.204.1122